Troop 307 Year In Review – Continued

don't want to embarrass her by naming her, but she earned the Outstanding Asst. Scoutmaster! Our Camp Most Valuable Scout was Eric Lemire who exemplified the Scout Spirit from beginning to end. As always unusual things always seem to happen at summer camp. At the start of camp we told them the top 3 Scouts had a surprise. The surprise was they got to shave Mr. Oliver's head bald! He was paying up on a bet where Life Scout Robert Fitzgerald smoked him in archery. Mr. Oliver was so confident; he said he would shave his head if he lost. The rest is history. We did it at a joint campfire with Troop 911 who attended with us. There was definitely a lot of whoopin and hollerin goin on that nite. Apparently a shaved head wasn't enough; they also put all his gear up in a tree!

At Red Rock this year the Scouts were in charge of the all the ranges - rifle, archery, shotgun and rocket. We expanded our horizons once again when Jason Weiss brought up throwing knives and taught us how to use them. The boys again voted to pass on the usual campground and stay out in the desert again using Mother Nature toilet facilities. We had our usual wacky rocket launches. We launched our 1st doll complete with a water bottle astronaut helmet. After literally screaming off the launch pad it went straight up then did a 90° turn and landed in our campfire area. We also sent up our 1st ham and cheese sandwich into space that came back to earth as a melted ham and cheese!

For our ski trip we did our 3rd Annual Scout Winter Olympics hosted by Matthew Lewis at Camp Jubilee. Several Scouts put up a zip-line across the fort. Our skiing was a bust because it rained and we couldn't ski or snowboard. But a $20 per Scout shopping spree at Charley Brown's helped ease the pain.

We went panning for gold at Camp Williams on the San Gabriel River, no one got rich but we had fun with fishing, hiking, geo-caching, a great campfire emceed by Chris Bradford and our usual rain. Someone must have done the rain dance this year because 4 out of 5 outings we got rained on - and we're not talking a couple drops either. As a fundraiser Mr. Sartain is suggesting that areas suffering with drought pay us to camp there!
